Beverley Paine, The Educating Parent

I first came across the idea of home education and we began seriously considering it in 1984 while our eldest was at kindergarten. Home educating our children was a wonderful privilege and I'm grateful for the incredible learning opportunities we experienced along the way.

Although our children are now adults, I continue to be an active support person and advocate for home education across Australia. I love to share my thoughts and experiences with others and to encourage them to 'have a go' and enjoy learning alongside their children.

Now that I'm a grandparent, and my children are beginning their home educating adventures with their families, I'm keener than ever to continue to reassure parents that it is a viable and successful alternative educational pathway for their children.

Stay in touch with me through my website <http://theeducatingparent.com>.

Beverley Paine

April Jermey

I took over the reins of Always Learning Books from my mum, Beverley, in 2011.

A part-time work-from-home mum of three, I 'officially' began home educating our eldest child in June last year, although, like my mum, I believe education is a life-long continuous process which begins at birth. As a child I enjoyed a mix of educational experiences at home and at school, completing high school in 1999.

I support the right of families to choose the education that best meets the needs of their children.

www.alwayslearningbooks.com.au

Home Education Defined

Inspired by overseas homeschooling books and magazines published since the 1960s families such as ours decided to live without school and teach their children from home. Over the last couple of decades the internet has helped to spread the word and the number of home educating Australian families has grown considerably, with an estimated 50,000 children receiving their education in this way. The reasons given for choosing home education are as diverse as the individual families. Parents often revise and add to their original reasons for home educating as the social, developmental and academic benefits accumulate over the years.

Home educating parents want to experience greater control over the direction and content of their children's education. It is only in recent human history that parents have handed the responsibility of their children's education to others. Home educating parents discover that helping their children learn is a joyous, although at times challenging, task that brings rewards beyond academic education. Learning together as a family builds a wonderful sense of community: this is the foundation for the development of responsible citizenship and healthy, happy and cooperative societies.

The nature of home education allows for incredible flexibility and diversity: parents are able to teach their children to suit their family's values and beliefs; use resources and materials to suit their individual children's learning needs and styles; and to explore and experiment with many different approaches to education. Families are able to evolve their own educational philosophies to suit their own particular circumstances and needs. Home education is a legal alternative to school education across Australia and support networks exist in all regions, providing information and sharing experiences among home educating families.

The image is a promotional banner for 'artventure'. At the top center, the word 'artventure' is written in a white, lowercase, sans-serif font. Above the 'a' and 'v' are colorful, abstract shapes in red, orange, yellow, and green. Below the logo, the text 'Online kids art classes for parents educating at home' is written in a smaller, white, sans-serif font. The background of the banner is a photograph of a woman sitting at a wooden table outdoors, surrounded by children who are sitting on the grass and drawing. The scene is set under a large, leafy tree in a park-like setting. At the bottom of the banner, there is a solid pink bar containing the text 'FREE TRIAL' in white, uppercase, sans-serif font, and the website address 'www.artventure.com.au' in white, lowercase, sans-serif font.

For all homeschool Math students and their parents.

Students progressing from Arithmetic to Advanced Math will need to learn how to solve word problems. PRESS transforms abstract word problems back to simple Arithmetic. Students will be able to pinpoint exactly where they need help. Your students will love you for simplifying Math.

Word problems occur daily in Science Courses. Use PRESS here too!

USE THE ONE UNIVERSAL METHOD – PRESS!

PRESS – a method that defines Math.

If you...

- ... are thinking about taking your children out of the school system,
 - ... want to avoid school altogether,
 - ... are curious about how homeschooling parents balance relationships, work and leisure commitments, manage the housework and educate their children at home,
 - ... already homeschool but are looking for fresh ideas,
 - ... are interested in other homeschooling approaches,
 - ... or perhaps simply long to be a 'fly on the wall' and see how other families organise learning at home...
- ...this book is for you.
